More than three hundred universities will be represented at the exercises. Honorary degrees will be conferred on twenty-three graduates of the University. The last event of the day will be the official George Washington Ball at the Mayflower Hotel which will take place immediately following the Convocation exercises.

President Marvin as head of the Washington Commission on Bicentennial plans will have an active part in the day's proceedings. He will speak in the various exercises throughout the day, in addition to making an address at the Convocation. The program should be of special interest to all University students.

An interesting feature of the day will be the fact that President Hoover's speech will be carried by amplifiers and by radio to people all over the United States. It is hoped that groups throughout the country will sing "America" in unison with those at the Capitol.

Spanish Club Makes Reorganization Plans

Mealy, President, Extends Invitation to All Spanish Students

El Club Espanol will have a reorganization meeting Thursday at 8:15 p. m. in Corcoran Hall, room 27. All students who have attended meetings in the past are urged not to miss this important meeting. No guest speaker has been invited as the officers wish to devote the evening to the business arrangements of the club for the coming semester.

Raymond Mealy, president of El Club Espanol, extends a special invitation to all students registered in first and second year Spanish. The club is to encourage interest in the Spanish language and people. Most of the meetings are of a social nature and no one is required to speak Spanish. Those who speak the language may converse with others of equal ability.

The speakers all use English in their talks. Many of the lectures are illustrated with slides or moving pictures, and the lecturers are all men who have travelled in some Spanish country.

Men Debaters Open Season In Stockton

No-decision Argument with Washington and Lee University Is Feature

George Washington University debaters opened the annual debate season last Friday night against Washington and Lee University in Stockton, Md. It was a no-decision discourse held on the subject: Resolved, That Congress should pass legislation providing for centralized control of industries. This topic elicited a spirited argument with Philip Merryman and Dewitt Bennett defending the affirmative for George Washington.

Both sides displayed a brand of oratory which would have made the decision exceedingly difficult had there been one.

The Colonial debating teams this year are under the direction of Professor Henry G. Roberts of the public speaking department.

Washington's Birthday Is Celebrated by Luther Club

Commemoration of George Washington's birthday was the central theme of the last regular meeting of the Luther Club, held on Tuesday, February 9, at the Luther Place Memorial Church. The Rev. Henry Manken, Jr., guest speaker, spoke on the subject, "The Influence of Lutheranism in George Washington's Time." Refreshments were served.

Medical Professors Read Papers Before Association

Dr. Charles Stanley White and Dr. Daniel LeRoy Borden of the Medical Faculty have gone to Raleigh, N. C., to read papers before the thirty-fourth annual session of the Tri-State Medical Association of the Carolinas and Virginia, meeting in that city on February 15, 16 and 17.

Alumni to Receive Honors at Special Winter Convocation

Graduates of Distinction in Various Fields Will Be Given Degrees

The Winter Convocation of the George Washington University, traditionally held on George Washington's birthday, this year is a day of extraordinary moment in the University calendar, marking the opening of the Bicentennial observance. The Board of Trustees and Faculty of the University, feeling that it is an appropriate time to recall some of the sons and daughters of the University and express appreciation of their attainment, will confer honorary degrees upon a considerable number. The list of those to be so honored will include graduates who have won distinction in the fields of science, education, public service, statesmanship, diplomacy, law, medicine, engineering, banking and industry. They will come to Washington from all parts of the country to be present at the convocation exercises.

Colleges and universities throughout the United States will take part in the program, sending representatives. The Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association will also join with the University in paying honor to George Washington on this occasion.

The address will be delivered by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University, chairman of the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission.

The exercises will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening in Constitution Hall, the auditorium of the Daughters of the American Revolution. In addition to the honorary degrees, approximately 150 degrees will be conferred in course.

The George Washington University was founded in 1821 in furtherance of the hope and project of the first President of the United States for a university located in the Capital of the Nation. "To which the youth of fortune and talents from all parts thereof might be sent for the completion of their Education in all the branches of polite literature;—in arts and Sciences,—in acquiring knowledge in the principles of Politics & good Government." With Washington's desire in mind, John Quincy Adams, then Secretary of State, and all the other members of the Cabinet, together with thirty-two members of Congress, contributed to the fund for the purchase of land and the development of the institution. Three years later when the first com-

Prom Orchestra Has Enjoyed Colorful Career Under Tremaine's Leadership

Tour Furnished Thrills for Paul Tremaine's Band, Which Plays for Interfrat Prom March 18—Limited Number of Tickets Available

Paul Tremaine and his famous orchestra, which plays for the Interfraternity Prom at the Shoreham on March 18, has led an adventurous and thrilling life during the time since Paul's father organized the group for him five years ago.

Their first engagement was at a small hotel in the Ozark hills, where Tremaine became familiar with such tunes as "Hand Me Down My Walkin' Cane" and "Comin' Round the Mountain," and the band is known for its arrangements of these mountain folk-songs.

In 1927 the orchestra toured throughout the Southwest, traveling from one town to another by train, auto, wagon, and horseback. One stop was at Seminole, Oklahoma, with the oil boom, rain and mud, and half-crazed fortune seekers. There every member of the orchestra carried a revolver for protection. According to Tremaine, Muskogee town has the most beautiful girls in the world, and at least two of his boys will agree with him, for they were married there. The band played vaudeville and one-night stands for two years with only four weeks' lay-off.

On April Fool's Day of 1929 Tremaine and his orchestra opened at Yeung's in New York. Although the Broadway wisecracks contended that an orchestra featuring spirituals and hill-billy numbers could never click there the band remained for 61 consecutive weeks, returning again in the fall after

Masons Will Sponsor Cherry Blossom Sale

Sorority Girls Will Sell Flowers on University Campus This Week

As has been the custom in the past, the George Washington University Masonic Club will sponsor the sale of Cherry Blossoms on the campus Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, of this week.

This annual sale is sponsored by the National League of Masonic Clubs with which the G. W. club is affiliated. The sale of the blossoms accomplishes the double purpose of honoring the memory of George Washington and aiding in the creation of an endowment for the maintenance of two chairs in the Foreign Service division of the School of Government.

The blossoms will be sold by prominent sorority girls who have generously consented to donate their services to this project which directly benefits our University. The student body is urged to support the sale.

Pictures for Annual Must Be In Feb. 20

Largest Collection of Campus Photographs to Appear in Cherry Tree

No pictures will be taken for the 1932 Cherry Tree after 10 p. m., Saturday, February 20, according to an announcement by Jerry Free, photographic manager of this year's Bicentennial Edition.

Social and university organizations are requested to arrange for photographs with the Casson Studio, 907 Pennsylvania Avenue N. W. in order that the work on the book may be completed in keeping with the high standards set for this, the most elaborate and historically valuable edition in the history of the publication. The studio will be open during the day from 9 till 5 and will make evening appointments for Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

Already there has been more than ample response to insure the largest collection of campus photographs which has ever appeared in any issue of the Cherry Tree, and seniors and organizations who have not attended to having their pictures made, are reminded that immediate action is necessary to insure a place in this epoch-making edition of the student annual.

Personally addressed cards are being mailed to individuals who as yet are delinquent in this duty to themselves and organizations as being notified of the number of members whose pictures are not yet in the hands of the Cherry Tree Staff.

Buff And Blue Falters After Ten Straight Victories, Falling Victim To Fiery Pittsburgh Quint, 38-32

George Washington's Forwards Are Effectively Checked, Unable to Locate Basket; Duquesne Holds Lead for Entire Game

Fighting a revamped Duquesne team, George Washington dropped its first game by a score of 38 to 32 in the Dukes gym last night, snapping a winning streak of ten straight and spoiling an undefeated season's string.

Falling behind at the first play, the Colonials never once held the lead, having their backs to the wall for the entire game.

Duquesne made the first basket in two minutes of play and finally at the end of 10 minutes, G. W. pulled up to a 7-7 tie. This was quickly overcome by the Dukes and at the end of the half they held an 18-12 lead.

Going into action in the second half, Duquesne scored two baskets before George Washington found its way. George Washington then retaliated with one basket, while the Dukes then added two more, and from then to the finish the game was in the bag.

Parrack, the District's leading scorer, failed to register a point from the floor. The entire team seemed unable to find the ring.

McDougall, the Dukes' captain, played a great game, being handicapped from the start with a bad wrist and ankle. He scored six field goals to lead both teams.

The George Washington team is composed of Louise Feinstein, Bertha Kauffman and Clara Critchfield.

Miss Helen Newman, Secretary of the Law School, member of Delta Sigma Rho, and honorary member of Sigma Delta Phi, will act as chairman of the debate. All members of the student body and the faculty are cordially invited.

Hatchette Swimmers Drop Second Match

Max Rote Outstanding Merman at Meet With Johns Hopkins Saturday

The Colonial mermen performed gamely but were unable to outpoint the Johns Hopkins squad Saturday evening in a meet held at the Knights of Columbus Pool in Baltimore, Md. The final score was 32½ to 26½ in favor of the Hopkins team.

Rote of the G. W. team was the outstanding performer in the meet, winning three first places in the three events in which he was entered, the 50-yard dash, the 100-yard free style dash, and the 150-yard back stroke. In all three events Rote led his competitors all the way and was never threatened.

Healop showed fine form in the diving events and in the opinion of onlookers was equal to or better than Reid, the latter being awarded first place by a slight margin. Boner, who was tied with Denius of Johns Hopkins for third place in the diving did nicely and should prove a valuable addition to that section of the squad.

Others of the Colonial mermen who scored were Burnside, Kinsler, McMullen, and Burns, the latter winning the 440 yard free style event.

The freshman swimmers will meet the Y. M. C. A. Men's Team in a meet at the Washington Y. M. C. A. Pool Tuesday evening, February 16, at 7 o'clock.

The opportunity to come i fellow students is one of the rived from university life.

By becoming intimately ac dents we open up a field of p sorbed by a process which is practically unconscious, and this knowledge can be obtained in no other way. The contact with innumerable characters gives us the ability to judge men, an ability which will be of great value in later life.

The constant clash of minds and personalities develops our positive individual traits of character—traits which would not otherwise be brought to light.

Surely these things are more important to us in after life than mere book learning, and we should make it our purpose to take advantage of the opportunity we have to broaden our knowledge through association as well as through the medium of text books.

Co-eds at the University of Minnesota have challenged Wisconsin co-eds to a milking-contest, the prize to be an engraved milk can.

A Questionnaire sent to the University of London students disclosed that ninety per cent of them do not believe in a God.

Dr. McCracken, head of Vassar College, says that "Students are not people, because they do not function as people should. They are not influential, as they should be, in the management of their colleges, or in control of public opinion."

All class rooms and laboratories at the University of Pittsburgh will be housed under one roof. The new building is 41 stories in height.

Former George Washington Student Recipient of Award

Marcus Sol Goldstein, a recent graduate of George Washington University, has just become the recipient of a grant-in-aid from the American Association for the Advancement of Science. His work will take him to Oklahoma where he will undertake studies on the physical anthropology of the Comanche Indians. During his stay at the University, Goldstein has been a student of Dr. Truman Michelson, professor of anthropology, whose recommendation, the former avers, was instrumental in securing the grant.

Goldstein, who will receive his master of arts degree from G. W. this February, had the major part of his thesis published in the current issue of the American Journal of Physical Anthropology.

Colonial Courtmen Score Tenth Win, Defeating Baltimore

Swamp Baltimoreans by Score of 72-21, in Easy Game as Burgess Stars

George Washington scored its tenth straight victory Saturday night by swamping Baltimore University 72-21 in the Colonial gym. This was a record score for local college teams this year and clearly showed the home team's superiority over the Baltimoreans.

The latter, completely outplayed from the start, were helpless against G. W.'s clever, fast passing and accurate shooting from all angles. George Washington's bewildering attack began with the opening whistle and was never slowed until the game's end.

Baltimore showed little in the way of a scoring threat, most of the visitors' points coming on long shots. Glassman and Kelly, alien forwards, managed to get free occasionally and led their team's scorers with eight and seven points respectively. Baltimore for the most part was stopped cold under the basket by the clever guarding of Zahn and Fenlon.

Forrest Burgess, eagle-eyed forward, led the Colonials' attack with 24 points. The rest of the points, however, were rather evenly divided, each man taking advantage of the opportunity to "fatten his individual record."

Wick Parrack, Burgess' running mate at forward, was slightly injured in a scrimmage and was removed from the game at the first half. Wick, nevertheless, was second in scoring with 12 points.

Arthur Zahn continued his stellar guard play chalking up 11 points and holding his man to seven. His floor game was of the highest order and he directed the team's attack masterfully.

In the final stages of the game, Baltimore unable to check the home team's stampede for the basket, fouled frequently giving George Washington many free shots and eliminating four of their own players from the game. The Colonials were successful in 13 out of 23 attempts at the charity line, Burgess making ten.

Colonials Will Play Wake Forest Five

Last Home Encounter of Season Will Take Place Saturday Night

In a contest slated to be the final home attraction of the season, the Colonial varsity quint clashes with Wake Forest College of North Carolina, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, in the H Street gymnasium.

This battle, a recent addition to the George Washington schedule, promises to be one well worth watching, as the visitors from the Tarheel State are no mean opponents. They have furnished strong opposition for such worthy foes as North Carolina, North Carolina State, Duke, and other court teams of their home sector, and figure to make things lively for the Buff and Blue as well. The Big Five of North Carolina includes them in its ranks, along with Davidson College and the schools mentioned above.

Unless an upset occurs, however, Pixlee's charges should add the North Carolinians to their rapidly growing list of victims.

As a result of the mid-year examinations, a valuable member of the squad has returned, in the person of Jack Connor, last year's captain, who played such an important part in the success of the team in 1930-31. Connor, who plays at either guard or forward, will strengthen the team still further in its quest for an undefeated season.

After the Wake Forest encounter, the Hatchettes will make a final trip north, during which they will meet St. Joseph's, in a return match at Philly on February 25; St. John's of Brooklyn at Brooklyn, on Feb. 26, and Rider College at Trenton, on February 27. They are up against a still more difficult proposition in playing three games on successive nights, with five of such caliber as these, especially St. John's, which is considered by many critics to be the outstanding college quint in the East.

Back at last—and a relief too! The touted Bryan Morse of the Herald stated last week in one of his daily morning spasms that the editorial appearing in The Hatchet concerning the advantages and desirability of a basketball contest between George Washington and the University of Maryland infers that the student body and athletic department fail to agree on the policy of local contests.

Might I inform Mr. Morse that it is only human that youths (of which the student body is composed) always enjoy disagreeing with their elders.

I must admit that the suggestion on part of my editor is an excellent one, as a contest between the quints of George Washington and Maryland would provide the quintessence of basketball thrills in addition to a large crowd that would pay money, a very nice advertising medium for both schools (particularly U. of M.—Ritchie Coliseum—nicht wahr?); and lastly dispense with caustic comment from enterprising sports writers.

Through various and insidious channels I have learned that the powers behind the Diamondback, Maryland's tabloid, are in favor of such a contest. Apropos, an editorial or favorable comment concerning same would be appreciated.

Wick Parrack and Forrest Burgess, giant and pygmy, comparatively speaking, of the Colonial basketballers, are now leading the District collegiate players with comfortable margin to spare in the scoring of points. Wick has a total of 137 points including Saturday night's slaughter, while Burgess amassed 24 points in the furore with Baltimore U. bringing his total to the sum of 129.

The only other basketballers approaching Wick and Forrest are White of C. U. and Carolan of Georgetown, who have according to reports on hand, 100 points each and with three more contests in which each will take part.

A play by play account of the G. W. U.-Baltimore U. fracas would read something like this—Parrack tossed a basket, Burgess took a pass from Connor and neatly scooped the ball through the hoop, Connor rang up a score, Parrack tossed a goal—etc., etc., far into the night.

A team from the Sunny Southland, one of North Carolina's big five, Wake Forest, will engage the Colonial quint next Saturday evening, and from reports will give our quint a merry battle for a victory. The game with Wake Forest will provide some sort of criticism by which to judge the performances of the Buff and Blue as compared with the southern colleges, notwithstanding the fact that Wake Forest is not a member of the Southern Conference.

We are glad to welcome back to school two wayward members of our athletic teams, Jack Connor and Lee Carlin. Jack is both handsome and fast—on the basketball floor, while Lee will be remembered, if for nothing else, for his fine display of coolness and ability in the gridiron contest with Alabama last fall.

The enterprising manager of the rifle team has just told me in great disgust that the Georgetown rifle aggregation refuses to shoot a match shoulder to shoulder but agrees to have a telegraphic contest.

The Hoy's marksmen evidently have an antipathy for personal contact which is not in keeping with the characteristic virility of Georgetown men.

Max Rote continues to be the prolific point gatherer for the Colonial natators. His powerful crawl proved instrumental in obtaining a majority of the points gained by George Washington. He won all three events in which he swam, and I recommend to anyone who enjoys watching beautiful performance in the water, the next meet in which he participates.

Arthur Zahn, veteran guard of the Buff and Blue quintet, is one of the most valuable players on the squad and because of his cool, fast, able, but quite unspectacular manner of play, his worth is perhaps not properly appreciated. However, his particularly brilliant performance against De Paul brings him into the limelight as does likewise his performance in the games following that contest.

In one of the leading metropolitan dailies a week ago there appeared a fitting tribute to Jim Pixlee, our Director of Athletics, written by a veteran who knows college sports and also the conditions existing at George Washington University. I take the liberty to quote part of H. C. (Curley) Byrd's column—"Jim Pixlee deserves a good deal more credit than he is getting for the work he is doing at George Washington. . . . in the two sports in which George Washington specializes (football and basketball) Pixlee has put the school on pretty close to an even status with the other institutions in this section."

The town of Hanover, New Hampshire, requires all eligible Dartmouth students to vote in order that it may collect a poll tax from them. In retaliation, the students attended a town meeting where they introduced and passed two bills, proposing the building of a wall around the town eight miles high and the construction of a city hall one foot wide and a mile high. Hanoverians had to take the affair to Washington to get out of building the two structures.

Saturday evening witnessed the debut of the 1932 Interfraternity Bowling Matches at the Columbia Alleys. The Acacia pinmen in defeating the Delta Tau Delta bowlers set two marks for the evening with high set and high match. In sweeping all three games before them with sets of 497, 559, and 490 making a total of 1546 they took undisputed lead in their league. Sigma Nu in their old form took three straight games from the newcomers to the Council, namely, Sigma Mu Sigma. This gives them the lead in League B.

The Phi Sig champions of last year won their match from Sigma Chi 2 to 1 not rounding into form until the last set when they rolled the next highest set of the evening with 541. The Theta Delta's, who occupied the cellar position last year, appeared at the matches with special bowling shirts taking two games from the T. U. O.'s though rolling lower total score. Kappa Alpha won two games from the Kappa Sig's with Estabrook tying with two others for high game honors of the evening at 123. The S. P. E.-S. A. E. match set the low mark for the night, the winners taking the match with a total pin score of 1867 to the defeated ones 1236. Lewis for the Sig Ep's rolled a high game of 123. Dryer, T. U. O. pinman was the other man to roll 123 during the evening. Rice, of Acacia, and Rice, of Phi Sigma Kappa, both rolled 121 to share second honors in the matches. The total scores for these matches were somewhat lower than the starting matches of last year. With the advent of the matches next week when old foes meet, the standings should be changed around and the entire series promises to be one of constant variation and excitement.

The University of California at Los Angeles and Berkeley, with an enrollment of 18,342, ranks first; Columbia University, with 15,109 students ranks second; and the University of Minnesota, with a total registration of 12,539 ranks third among American institutions' figures. Minnesota and two other Ohio universities surpassed all other major universities in rate of growth.

Freshman Quint Victorious In Devitt and Wilson Games

The George Washington freshman five succeeded in winning two games last week to bring their total number of victories to 10 in 14 games. On Thursday Wilson Teacher's College was swamped by the Cubs, 47-23, and on Monday, Devitt was taken into camp by a score of 45 to 14.

The frosh did not have much competition in either tilt and scored at ease. In the Wilson game, Bill Noonan, high scoring Colonial guard, accounted for 23 markers to lead the scoring festivities.

Tech High School, runners-up in the scholastic series, will be met along with Bethesda-Chevy Chase Firemen this week by the freshmen.

Freshman Quintet Finishes Schedule

Washington and Lee, Tech, and Bethesda to Be Met During Week

Three court contests will be played by the Colonial frosh this week, terminating their schedule for the 1932 basketball season. Washington and Lee High School was met last night in Ballston, Va. Tech High will again battle the frosh in the University gym on Wednesday at 4 p. m., while the final fracas will be with Bethesda High in Chevy Chase, Friday at 7 p. m.

On paper the nearby Virginia secondary school looks strong in comparison with the record of our yearling outfit, but if George Washington gets the breaks there is a possibility of a Colonial victory.

The banner game of these three contests is the one with Tech. Having already suffered one defeat at the hands of the Maroon and Gray basketballers, the Buff and Blue youngsters are anxious to wipe out this ignominy. Eastern High took a lot of confidence out of the Techies when the highly touted Eastern aggressiveness conclusively whipped the McKinley High aggregation. Considering these factors, the frosh have an even chance of clinching a triumph in their last major contest.

Bethesda High School is not expected to offer serious opposition, and if the unique fails to happen the Colonials are expected to emerge from their final court fray of the year victorious.

Prep School Fives Vie for Post Cup

With Jim Pixlee as host, a prep school basketball contest will be held in the George Washington gymnasium February 22, 23, and 24. The contestants will vie for a cup offered by the Washington Post, in conjunction with the George Washington Bicentennial Sports Commission.

The tournament will include London, St. Albans, Gonzaga, St. John's, Friends, Georgetown Prep, Devitt, and Emerson, and will be run off in elimination form of seven games.

Such organized play as the contest will provide for the preparatory school fives will bring forth interest and comment that is due the private institutions.

Students at Bryn Mawr will be allowed to have radios in their rooms in the future.

DEPTH SOUNDERS FOR AIRCRAFT

WITH the application of electricity to aircraft instruments, another chapter was written in the annals of air transportation. To-day's ship is not only swifter but safer and more dependable. Modern depth-sounding devices indicate instantly the height of the ship above the ground surface. A unique feature of General Electric's recently purchased monoplane is the almost completely electrified instrument panel.

The most recently developed instrument is the sonic altimeter, which provides a quick means of indicating changes in height above ground. Sound from an Intermittently operated air whistle is directed downward. The echo is picked up in a receiving megaphone, and the sound is heard through a stethoscope. The elapsed time between the sound and the echo determines the height. Tests show that water, buildings, woods, etc., produce echoes that are different and characteristic.

Besides developing a complete system of aircraft instruments, college-trained General Electric engineers have pioneered in every electrical field—on land, on sea, and in the air.

Gives Tea at Lambie House

The International Student Society of the George Washington University held an interesting and successful tea at the Lambie House Sunday afternoon. The guests were introduced with the names of the countries they represented, and many of them gave interesting accounts of their homelands.

After the group's picture was taken in front of the house, a new card game from the East, with a prize for the winner, was introduced, and enjoyed by all.

The society will hold a reception and dance February 27, in honor of President Marlin. Flags of the countries represented will be displayed, and prominent members of the diplomatic corps will be invited. The executive council of the society will meet tomorrow evening in W 27 at 8:30, to discuss final plans for the event.

The society plans to give not only teas, but also dances, programs, and lectures, which will reveal many interesting facts about each country represented in the club. Prominent speakers will be invited. Students from foreign countries are invited to join.

President Marlin has been elected honorary president of the society; and ambassadors and ministers, honorary vice-presidents. The society is under the supervision of Professor Alan T. Deibert.

Periodicals Are Transferred

To Library Reserve Section

If you are one of those who have been wondering what has happened to the magazines and periodicals which used to be raked at the north end of the library reading room, your query is answered. The Library announces that henceforth all valuable periodicals will be kept in the reserve section. It is deeply regretted that such action is necessary, but the frequent loss of magazines makes the step imperative in order to make certain that they shall remain the property of the university rather than of a few individual students.

Les Brooks, Magistrate at Birmingham, England, was the guest of honor at a dinner held at the Hotel Hamilton preceding the meeting. Olive Geiger, dean of province two, told of plans for the province convention to be held in Washington this spring, and Beatrice Clephane, newly-elected president of the national Panhellenic Legal Council, described the work of the organization.

The success and smooth running efficiency of the Student Council Social Calendar is largely due to the energy and managing ability of Marian Ziegler, who holds down the position of chairman of the Social Calendar of the Student Council.

She is active in publications, having served on the Cherry Tree Staff in the past, and is this year the Editor of the School of Education on the Cherry Tree. A charter member of both Delphi, women's honorary social organization, and Le Cercle Francais Universitaire, she is also vice-president of both organizations.

Marian has served on the Panhellenic Council since 1929 and is its treasurer this year. She is a member of the Women's Athletic Association and played on the Sophomore hockey team. Her social sorority is Sigma Kappa.

Library Acquisitions

For February Listed

Among the many additions to the University Library during the month of January, as announced by Acting Librarian John Russell Mason, appear several which have had widespread sale and recognition.

"The Good Earth," by Pearl S. Buck, has had a large number of printings and is a welcome addition to the library. This story of the life of the lower classes in China has been warmly received by students of government and education. It is a timely book now that all eyes are turned toward the Far East. Another interesting work entitled "China: the collapse of a civilization," by Peffer, offers a similar appeal, as does Crobie Garston's "The Dragon and the Lotus."

Emil Ludwig's superlative biography of Napoleon is represented in three additional copies.

Two other volumes which strike a little nearer home are James Truslow Adams' newly published "Epic of America," and "The True George Washington," by P. L. Ford. This last is one of a number of studies of the first President which should have a significant appeal during the Bicentennial celebration of his birth.

A large number of recently published tomes on various phases of law have also been acquired, as well as a score of books in foreign languages. Among these latter appears a ten-volume set of Prosper Merimee's complete works.

Any of these books are available by applying to the assistant in the Reserve Section, who has a record of where they are shelved.

The Canadian Intercollegiate Press Union has recently been established, with the McGill Daily, The Varsity, the University of Western Ontario Gazette, and the Journal as its present members. The Union expects to embrace Canadian Universities from coast to coast.

Annual Dinner Given
By Delta Phi Epsilon

Walter Husband, assistant secretary of Labor, addressed members and guests of Delta Phi Epsilon, Monday night, February 8, on the History of American Immigration Policies. Prominent members of the fraternity present at the meeting and banquet included Dr. William F. Netz, dean of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University and president of Delta Phi Epsilon; Dr. John Donaldson, of the Economics Department here and national vice-president of the fraternity; Dr. Walter H. E. Jaeger, general secretary; and Dr. Daniel H. Buchanan, professor of Economic Thought at G. W.

At the formal meeting preceding the banquet, Mr. Husband traced the various immigration policies that have been pursued since early Colonial life. In contrast to the time when it was considered to the best interests of the country to permit unrestricted immigration and when it used to be that, under the law, foreigners were encouraged to come to the United States through contract labor inducements, it is now realized that there is an over-supply of labor.

Gertrude Prokosch Lectures on Dance

Lecture-Recital Will Be Held at Gordon Junior High School

Miss Gertrude Prokosch will conduct a lecture-recital on "The Dance as Plastic and Dramatic Art," tomorrow evening at 8:15 in the auditorium of the Gordon Junior High School, Wisconsin Avenue and 34th Street, under the auspices of the Women's Physical Education Department. Members of the Orchestra and physical education students will assist in several interpretations. Students of the University will be offered the 50-cent tickets for 35 cents.

Miss Prokosch is the daughter of Professor Prokosch, head of the department of Germanic Languages and Literatures at Yale University. She received her Masters degree at Bryn Mawr College, and has studied design and production at the Yale School of Drama. Her studies were completed in Germany, New York, and Philadelphia, where she studied the systems of the Russian ballet, Ballo, Duncan, Wigman, Chailf, Mensendieck, and H'Doubler.

Miss Prokosch's programs are interesting to professional dancers, teachers, art students, and to those who merely wish a broader knowledge of the fundamentals of the dance. She recently conducted classes at the University of Wisconsin, and last week gave her first full-length New York program at the Recital Theatre. Saturday night she lectured on "Primitive Origins of the Modern Dance," at Hood College. She will also visit and conduct several dancing classes here this week.

WHO'S WHO ON THE FACULTY

A lover of the romance languages, an authority on higher education, a student of Hispano-American history, a journalist of note, an essayist of renown, this is, all too briefly, Henry Gratton Doyle, a scholar and a gentleman.

Dean Doyle, as he is affectionately known to George Washington students, is Professor of Romance Languages, Dean of the Junior College, and is a driving force behind the advancement of our University. Although continually delving back into the romance of Spanish America and the composition of academic treatises, he remains a "modern" in thought, word, and action. Not only is he an enthusiastic advocate of "freedom of the press," but contends that college editors should be allowed to accept all of the responsibilities of the professional journalist in their editorial and news columns.

Ever since Professor Doyle's high school days he has been interested in the vibrant profession of "news gathering." In high school he occupied a position on the staff of the publication but when he entered Harvard University to further his education he found it necessary to sacrifice his journalistic tendencies to the much greater need of making a living while striving to obtain a coveted Bachelor of Arts degree. Following his achievement of a B. A. he immediately matriculated in the Harvard Graduate School for work toward his Master's.

Entering as instructor

Coming to George Washington University in 1916 as an instructor in romance languages, after teaching in the same field at Harvard for four years, he became interested in the then feeble Junior College movement. Henry Gratton Doyle rose rapidly; for in 1918 he was made assistant professor and three years later he became Professor of Romance Languages. Leadership received recognition in the appointment of Professor Doyle to the position of Dean of Men in 1927, which position he held until 1929.

It was in this year that the College of Arts and Sciences was divided into the Junior, Columbian, Engineering, and other colleges. Dean Doyle, appropriately, was placed at the head of the Junior College where he now serves. He is intensely interested in the advancement and adoption of the Junior College system, a new education phase, for eastern institutions, by American universities. As a result of his wholehearted labor and technical knowledge of this movement he has been scheduled to speak before a meeting of the Association of Junior Colleges in Richmond, Va., on Tuesday of this week.

Journalistic interests

The Dean, when he entered George Washington thirteen years ago, again interested himself in his most ardent youthful love—journalism, culminating in the position he now holds as chairman of the faculty on student publications. It was a lucky day for The Hatchet when this appointment was signed, as heretofore stated, Dean Doyle is an advocate of freedom of the college press.

He has stated, "The college editor should be allowed to print anything in fact, but also should be held responsible for all stories appearing in his paper."

However, the Dean does not wish his defense of the college news sheet to be construed as favoring the flamboyant yellow journalism that has been evident of late in a few of the more prominent universities.

Knowledge of Latin America

Dean Doyle's knowledge of and interest in Spanish America is evident by the quantity and quality of his articles and books concerning the South American nations. This learning coupled with his excellent reputation as an authority on the romance languages, particularly Spanish, marks him as a personage high in Pan-American business and literary circles.

For a number of years past, and likewise this one, he has lectured at Johns Hopkins University on French philology. He has translated "On the Slopes of Calvary" from the Italian, and "Catecismo civico de los derechos deberes de ciudadanos, americanos" from the Spanish. In 1921, in collaboration with G. Rivera of Harvard University, he published "En Espana," and in 1931, in collaboration with Professor C. K. Jones, he published "Trozos Escogidos." At present Dean Doyle is working on a bibliography of the literature of Central America which is to be published by the Harvard University Press.

Literary Efforts

The editorial interests and writings of Henry Gratton Doyle are rather multitudinous. As an associate of "Current History" he writes monthly a resume of current developments in South America. Since 1912 he has been modern language editor of the "Journal of Education" and assistant managing editor of the "Modern Language Journal."

He combines literary talent and language technique in his associate editorship of the "Hispania" and consulting editorship on the "Italica." Recently Secretary of State Stimson appointed him a member of the International Council on Intellectual Cooperation with Latin America. For all of his scholastic, literary, and educational achievements, Henry Gratton Doyle remains human. When the writer questioned him concerning a hobby, the Dean smiled, a sparkle came into his eyes, he pointed to three pictures on his desk and said: "They're my hobby." And the writer offers the opinion that Henry, Mary, and Robert Doyle are a worthy hobby for any man.

Alumni Will Receive Honors At Special Winter Convocation

mentence was held, President Monroe headed the eminent company attending the exercises.

In the evolving of its curriculum the University has sought to develop opportunities in the National Capital in the various phases of education as set forth by George Washington.

Education "in all the branches of polite literature; in arts and Science," is offered by Columbian College, the University's original academic unit. Professional research in these fields is directed by the Graduate Council.

The School of Government, founded in 1898 as the School of Comparative Jurisprudence and Diplomacy, is particularly in accord with Washington's desire for training at the National Capital in "the principles of Politics and Good Government." This School was the first in the country to offer training specifically for the Foreign Service.

The University also has professional schools of Medicine, Law, Engineering, Architecture, Education, Pharmacy, Library Science, and Fine Arts.

Two other events will mark the convocation period. On Friday, February 19, alumni of the School of Education will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the founding of the school, presenting to the University a portrait of its dean, William Carl Ruediger. On Saturday, February 20, the annual reunion and banquet of the Medical alumni will be held at the Willard Hotel with the President of the American Medical Association, Dr. E. Starr Judd, as guest of honor and speaker.

Students of Shakespeare Study His Works In Club

Formation of a group to be known as The Shakespearean Society is being promoted in the University by a number of students interested more than superficially in the works of the great bard. The designated purpose of the society is to furnish an opportunity for inspection and intellectual enjoyment of Shakespeare's works as can best be obtained by group rather than individual efforts.

Character readings from various scenes of the plays, together with discussions and topics will be the program for the meetings. In addition, it is planned to have a number of prominent authorities on Shakespeare deliver brief and enlightening talks at stated intervals throughout the school year.

An important meeting of the society will take place this Thursday evening at 7:30 in Corcoran Hall 15, when definite plans for the remainder of the present semester will be formulated. The founders of the society hold that their achievements can be commensurate with the number of interested members and urge all such students to attend this meeting.

A Student Double-Cross

Because the town of Hanover, New Hampshire required all eligible Dartmouth students to vote so that a poll tax might be collected from them, the students attended a town meeting and passed two bills which proposed the construction of a city hall one foot wide and a mile high, and a wall around the town eight miles high. Two townspeople had to appeal to Washington to be relieved of building the two structures.

Secret of High Grades Revealed by University Of Kentucky Research

After deep, industrious investigation, the secret of high grades at least at the University of Kentucky, has been revealed. The poor professors, overwhelmed by the ever-present, psychological human element, are influenced in spite of themselves. The women instructors are drawn by a powerful, mysterious something to grade the men 30 per cent higher than the women students. The men instructors, unconsciously affected by countless centuries of courtesy and consideration for the fairer sex in the past, habitually grade the women 50 per cent higher than the men.

We are glad to hear that the almighty powers among us are really human, behind their high wall of apparent sternness. This revelation of their weakness has given us new hope. We now fervently vow to work with increased inspiration for those elusive "A's" and remote "B's." But we hope certain members of the faculty do not read this expose until we have the "A's" safely in our possession.

Very Appropriate Gifts

At the University of Minnesota, the outstanding student was presented with a little red oil can, and the most recently engaged student was given a ball and chain.

Colonial Marksmen Lose to Midshipmen

Telegraphic Matches with
V. P. I. and V. M. I. Also
Staged During Week

The Colonial rifle team ended a week of conquests with one victory over Virginia Polytechnic Institute in a telegraphic match and a shoulder to shoulder loss to the strong Naval Academy squad at Annapolis. A telegraphic match with V. M. I. was also held this week-end but the results have not been received.

Tom Jackson was high man for G. W. while his teammates shot to an easy victory over V. P. I. by a score of 1732 to 1309 during the week ending February 15. Although the G-Streeters shot a score of 1370 in the Navy setto, they were barely overcome by the remarkable sharpshooting of last year's national champions. John Brightenburg piled up 283 points to lead the G. W. marksmen and tie McDougal, Midshipman, for first honors. The ability of the sailors to shoot from the standing position was largely responsible for their high point score. In the prone and kneeling position the margin of the Midshipmen was slight.

Beach, Brylawski and Manager Melcer were the three Colonials entered in the National Intercollegiate Individual Championships with Melcer showing to the best advantage by a 581 point total. Capt. "Skeeter" Barr, national individual champion last year and present G. W. leader, was unable to compete because of illness. The results of the national matches will be announced until after all contestants have turned in their scores.

Matches with Johns Hopkins and Georgetown, which had previously been postponed will be staged during the coming week. Despite the proximity of both Georgetown and George Washington, their rifle match will be telegraphic due to the refusal of the Hoyas to shoot it out shoulder to shoulder.

Society of Civil Engineers Will Hear Robert Thomas Give Address Wednesday

Lieut. Comdr. Robert E. Thomas (CEC), USN, will deliver a short talk next Wednesday night, February 17, at 8:15 in K12, to the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Known to the civil engineers of the country as an expert on aviation and airports, Lieutenant Commander Thomas promises to be an interesting speaker. He has, for many years, planned and built the airports of the United States Navy, and during this time he has handled millions of dollars in appropriations. He has just returned from the Miami air races where he was featured as both a pilot and a judge.

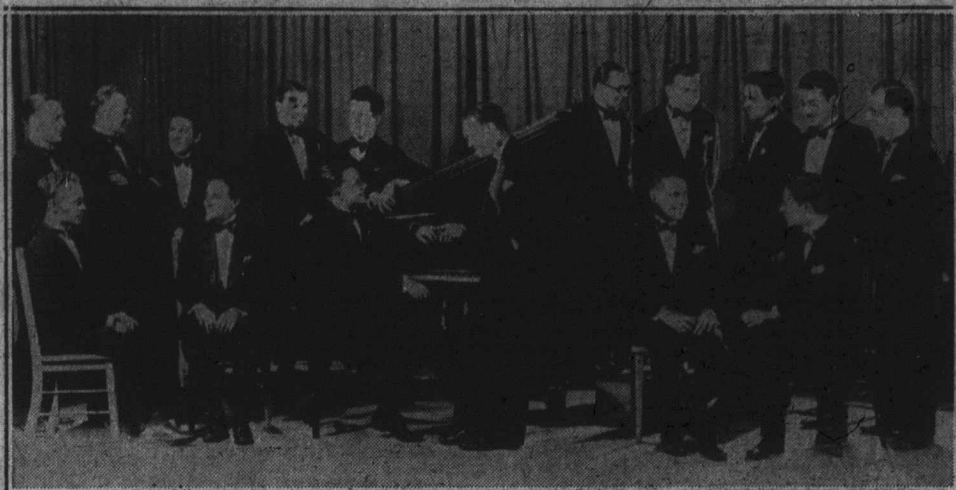

The Am. Soc. C. E. has launched its second semester program which is said to include a bus trip followed by a picnic at some engineering project in the near vicinity. Other speakers scheduled for this semester are Captain Burrell of the Navy, Mr. Gordon District Sanitary Engineer, Mr. McCrory, the engineer globe-trotter, and several others of equal reputation.

Philosophical Society Re-elects Richardson

Dr. Edward Elliott Richardson, Elton professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy, was re-elected president of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry at the society's meeting, January 12, at the New National Museum. Dr. Matalce T. Legg, Dr. Richardson's assistant last year, was elected secretary of the Society. She also presented a very important paper, the subject being Cimonistic Conception of Reality.

In a debate at McGill University, it was decided that science has not increased the sum total of human happiness during the past century. One of the speakers denounced modern science because it prolongs the lives of aged, worthless imbeciles, and provides more food for gunpowder.

Hosts for Conclave

Alpha Pi, the George Washington chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, national professional chemical fraternity, will be a co-host with the University of Maryland and Washington Professional chapters of the fraternity for their twelfth national biennial conclave to be held in Washington this June according to plans now being formulated.

An extensive campaign program has been arranged including a sightseeing trip of Washington and Mount Vernon, a special visit to the Bureau of Standards and an afternoon of golf and tennis at the Army and Navy Club as well as the usual conferences, dinners and initiation. For the most part, however, the Maryland campus at College Park, will be the scene of activity from Sunday, June 12 to Friday, June 17, the days of the convention.

Preparations were begun in September and already the local chapters have pledged a large sum of money to insure the success of the affair. Members of George Washington Chapter who are on the general planning committee are W. Stanley Clabaugh, Charles A. Kinser, and Richard L. Sawyer. G. W. Irving, Jr., has been appointed a member of the publicity committee and William Hart is on the hospitality committee.

"You know Grandfather raised

they always taste exactly right."
